THE STRIKE SITUATION

Railroad Managers Determine to Make a Vigorous Fight.

STATEMENT OF PRESIDENT DEBS.

He Charges That the Pullman Company Had Brought the Workers to a Condition of Serfdom, While Mr. Pullman Calls the Strike an Anarchist Move.

CHICAGO, June 30.—President Debs, of the American Railway union, issues an address to the railway men of America setting forth the causes and objects of the present strike. In his address he says:

"The struggle with the Pullman company has developed into a contest between the producing classes and the money power of the country. This was what Lincoln predicted at the close of the war, and it was this reflection that gave the great emancipator his gloomiest forebodings. We stand upon the ground that workingmen are entitled to a just proportion of the proceeds of their labor. This the Pullman company denied them.

"Reductions have been made from time to time until the employes earned barely sufficient wages to live, not enough to prevent them from sinking deeper and deeper into Pullman's debt, thereby mortgaging their bodies and souls, as well as their children's, to that heartless corporation.

"Up to this point the fight was between the Pullman employes and the Pullman company. The American Railway union resolved that its members would refuse to handle Pullman cars and equipment. Then the railway corporations, through the General Managers' association, came to the rescue and in a series of whereases declared to the world that they would go into partnership with the Pullman company to stand by it in its devilish work of starving its employes to death.

GEORGE M. PULLMAN.

"The American Railway union accepted the gauge of war and thus the contest is now on between the railway corporations united solidly upon the one hand and the labor forces upon the other.

"I appeal to strikers everywhere to refrain from any act of violence. There must be no interference with the affairs of the companies involved, and above all, let there be no act of depredation. A man who will destroy property or violate law is an enemy and not a friend of the cause of labor. The general public is with us and we need only to maintain a dignified, honest, straightforward policy to achieve victory.

"I have faith in the great body of railway employes of the country, and am confident they will maintain an unbroken front in spite of any opposition that may be brought to bear against them. I am perfectly confident of success. We cannot fail."

In an interview President Debs said, concerning the possibility of his arrest by order of the United States courts:

"I anticipate no trouble with the courts, and I hardly see how I can be arrested until I commit or cause to be committed some overt act of violence against the lines which the courts now operate. You will notice that Judge Caldwell says that we have a right to order out the men on the Santa Fe. He says, though, that as soon as the men leave the company's or the court's employ they must in no way interfere with the running of trains. Certainly they will not do that, for they are under orders to resort to no violence. Judge Caldwell admits that the men have a right to quit work. That is what we contend for, and we are, therefore, justified by the court's ruling."

"We've adopted the cause of the other side and opened up strong and vigorous measures against the strikers, which we intend to push with all the strength and power at our command from this time on."

So spoke John M. Egan, of St. Paul, who has been made commander of the railroad forces in Chicago in the fight against the boycott. Mr Egan further said that several new firemen had been put to work on three different roads, and the places left vacant by the strikers on all roads centering in Chicago would be rapidly filled from among the hundreds of men who are making applications for work. Mr Egan has the reputation of being one of the greatest single handed fighters in the country.

John M Egan, representing the General Managers' association, furnishes an estimate of the number of men who have struck, so far, in the whole country, on the best information he could obtain: Northwestern, 1,0[illegible]; Illinois Central, 4,000; Eastern Illinois, 800; Santa Fe, 10[illegible]; Chicago and Northern Pacific, 7[illegible]; Wisconsin Central, [illegible]; Great Western, [illegible]; Baltimore and Ohio, [illegible]; Pennsylvania, 1,400; Western Indiana, 300; total, 17,[illegible].

George M Pullman, president of the Palace Car company, said in an interview:

"The strike is no longer a fight against the Pullman company alone. It has spread and grown beyond us until now the Pullman strikers are a subordinate feature. The railroads are now trying to see whether or not they have the right to control their own lines and manage their own property. While the strike was confined to our company we at no time asked the railroads to assist us and when the general managers of the railroads decided to oppose the American Railway union they asked neither advice nor assistance from the Pullman company. These railways are now fighting for the right to conduct the management of their own lines. That is the point at stake and it may as well be settled at the present time as at any other."

The first overt act of violence in the railroad strike occurred yesterday afternoon, when the engineer and fireman of an Illinois Central suburban train were driven from their engine by a mob of 400 men. They were pelted with rocks and bricks and chased away. The train was stopped just north of the crossing at Burnside station. The engineer and fireman fled for their lives, pursued by a portion of the mob, while others backed the engine into the round house, leaving the cars standing on the main track. When, a short time later, a north bound suburban train appeared it, too, was stopped, the engine detached and taken to the round house, and the cars left standing on the tracks. A force of twenty-five policemen hastened to the scene and scattered the mob.

The switchmen will not go out on a strike. This result was reached at midnight, after a long and heated discussion on the part of 800 members of the Switchmen's Mutual Aid association. A resolution was adopted as a compromise that the association sympathizes with the strikers, but it cannot recognize the authority of the American Railway union to call out the members of the association. During the strike members will not take positions vacated by strikers, will not work with scabs, and will not work under police protection.

Many of the commission houses at the stock yards here regard the situation as serious and have notified their clients in Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Texas and other states not to ship stock unless the railroad companies agree to deliver the shipment and to be responsible for loss, delay or responsibility if there are any losses on account of delay. The result is that the shipments have been stopped in many instances and the price of meat is expected to take a rapid jump upward before many days.

M. A. Stafford, general chairman of the Pacific division of the Order of Railway Conductors, and C. E. [illegible], chairman of the Pacific division of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, issued bulletins deploring the strike on the Southern Pacific system, and advising members of these orders to retain their positions and attend to their own duties, regardless of the American Railway union strike.

President Alexander Shields, of the Hammond branch of the American Railway union, and three members of that order named Patrick Hannon, John Roscoe and Walter John were arrested for instigating Wednesday night's movement when a train on the Monon was held. The train carried the United States mail, which was delayed over twelve hours.

At St. Louis Director Kern, of the American Railroad union, received word from President Debs that the strike had been declared on the entire Gould system. M. J. Elliott, another director of the American Railroad union, has arrived at St. Louis to assist Kern in the management of the strike.

A Northern Pacific train which left St Paul at 8 o'clock last night, with three Pullmans attached, was badly delayed in the suburbs of St Paul by the setting of brakes from inside the car. A mob of 300 surrounded it and pelted the engineer and fireman with large rocks. Every window in the cars was broken. The fireman was a nonunion man.

At Ludlow, Ky., United States deputy marshals, with revolvers and Winchesters, patrol the railway tracks. City police are stationed at intervals on all railway tracks within the city. At that place an unknown man tried to uncouple a moving train, whereupon Trainmaster Ed Sherman knocked him down.

On the Missouri Pacific railroad in St. Louis the freight blockade is complete. The mail and passenger trains on that road are moving in and out without interference, being made up by the few switchmen who remained loyal. Everything on the Iron Mountain road in St. Louis is tied up.

The situation of the strike in Cincinnati looks more ominous of mischief today. Not a road except the Pennsylvania is receiving freight. News received there is that the Chesapeake and Ohio being unable to receive coal in West Virginia for shipment, the mines have shut down.

The Hocking Valley mines must close because the railroad is tied up from the Ohio river to Toledo. Coal trains were stopped at Logan, Straitsville, Nelsonville and other points. All hands on that road quit on orders from Debs except telegraph operators.

Sheriff Frederick, at Hammond, Ind., wired Governor Matthews that he was unable to prevent the lawless acts of the strikers, and called for troops. The strikers have spiked switches and refuse to allow any trains having Pullman cars to proceed.

All the Denver and Rio Grande employes in Pueblo, Colo., including shopmen, trackmen and even graders, have struck. They say they will not return to work until the company stops running Pullman cars.

The Southern Pacific yesterday sent word to all of its connections that it was not in a position to handle any business because of the strike, and requesting all lines to refrain from selling tickets over its line.

The Illinois Central last night sent out a train from Cairo, Ills., for Chicago without Pullman sleepers. The train was sent to accommodate the passengers who had been delayed at Cairo by the strike.

Attorney General Olney instructs Marshal Hawkins at Indianapolis to arrest every person who interferes with the mail by stopping trains.

The BREATH of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked, and frequently destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which is usually the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results by its use for years past, properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best and only cure. Call upon your druggist for it.

A MURDEROUS CONDUCTOR

He Kills a Prominent Virginian Who Had Him Discharged.

CLIFTON FORGE, Va., June 30.—Colonel M. C. Parsons was shot in the lobby of Gladys Inn yesterday afternoon. The shooting was done by Thomas A. Goodman, a passenger conductor on the Richmond and Alleghany railroad. Parsons lived one hour and fifteen minutes after having been shot, but never spoke. After the murder Conductor Goodman went before W. W. Davis, mayor of Clifton Forge, and gave himself up, remarking that when the public had become informed of all the circumstances connected with the affair he would be justified by them for the killing.

Colonel Parsons, it is understood, had charged that Goodman permitted colored women of bad repute to travel on his train free. He complained because members of his family had been annoyed and insulted by these women. In consequence of these charges Goodman was dismissed.

Colonel Parsons was a native of New York and was about 55 years old. He had been identified with some interests in the western part of Virginia and West Virginia for fifteen or twenty years. Six years ago he acquired possession of the natural bridge property in Rock Bridge county, Va., and was interested in the recent efforts to develop that section of the commonwealth. He was a Republican in politics, and two years ago led the revolt of the white Republicans of the state against the regime of ex-Senator Mahone. He lived in the summer at the natural bridge and in winter, with his family, he occupied a handsome residence in the northwest section of Washington.

Recusant Witnesses Indicted.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The deliberations of the grand jury of the district over the cases of the recusant witnesses before the sugar trust investigating committee resulted yesterday in the indictment of Broker Elverton R. Chapman, a member of the firm of Moore & Schley of New York city, and John W. MacCartney, of this city. Both furnished bail. They will be arraigned to plead in the criminal court Monday or Tuesday. No action has yet been taken by the jury in the cases of Correspondents Shriver and Edwards and Thomas Searles, of the trust.

A Boy Frightened to Death.

NEW YORK, June 30.—While three boys, Frank Emrich, 14 years old; Charles Metzler, 17, and George Walsh, 17, were skylarking in front of Henry Wieland's grocery store on East Sixteenth street a pane of glass was accidentally broken. Policeman O'Brien caught Metzler and Walsh and locked them up but lost sight of Emrich. Afterward the dead body of Emrich was found in a cellar. Fear of arrest had so excited him that he died of heart disease.

The Defiant Evangelist.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 30.—J. R. Rice, the cowboy evangelist, who with his wife was held in $500 bail Tuesday night for court on the charge of obstructing the highways, was again arrested yesterday and sentenced to fifteen days' imprisonment for disorderly conduct in holding public meetings on the streets. The prisoner is singing hymns in his cell, while a great crowd is listening on the outside of the jail.

Members of the Omladina Sentenced.

PRAGUE, June 30.—The Czech youths Kolicko, Malejovsk and Schultz, were found guilty of lurking round the Hofburg in Vienna last March for the purpose of stabbing the emperor, and thus avenging the imagined wrongs of the Omladina. Schultz was sentenced to thirteen months imprisonment. The other two were sentenced to terms of twelve years each.

Wiman Still in Jail

NEW YORK, June 30.—Application for a certificate of reasonable doubt in the case of Erastus Wiman, the convicted forger, was to have been made before Justice Barrett in the supreme court chambers yesterday, but by consent of counsel on both sides the application was postponed until July 9 next. In the interim Wiman will remain in the Tombs.

Santo Unrepentant.

LYONS, June 30.—Santo remains unrepentant. He speaks of his crime as calmly as though it were an ordinary occurrence. The prisoner [illegible] for home, saying nothing [illegible]. He answers ordinary questions [illegible], but he has a ferocious [illegible] and the city marshal [illegible] to replies in harsh, complaining tones.

Tin Plate Workers Quiet.

PITTSBURG, June 30.—There will be no more conferences on the Amalgamated tin plate scale, as the manufacturers have either signed or are preparing to sign under an agreement for another conference when the tariff bill is passed. The sheet mills will shut down tonight for a month. No serious strike is anticipated.

Dupuy Urged to Remain.

PARIS, June 30.—M. Auguste Burdeau has expressed a wish to become president of the chamber of deputies rather than to undertake the formation of a ministry and President Casimir-Perier has urged M. Dupuy to retain the premiership and reconstruct the cabinet.

Big Rolling Mill Resumes.

WHEELING, W. Va., June 30.—The blast furnace of the Riverside mill, which has been idle four months, went on yesterday and the entire mill, employing 4,000 men, resumed today with orders sufficient to last until fall.

Fatal Sunstroke.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 30.—The thermometer was at 96 in the shade all day yesterday and the heat was intense. [illegible] suddenly suffered a fatal sunstroke.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

The Railroad Strike Now Interferes with Resumption.

LIMITED DEMAND FOR PRODUCTS.

Though the Resumption of Work in Mines and Mills Has Made Good Progress, the Unrest of Labor Retard a Rapid Return to Normal Conditions.

NEW YORK, June 30.—R. G. Dun's weekly review of trade says: The great strike of coal miners has ended at most points, but another threatens to interrupt business more seriously for a time. Travel and traffic are well nigh stopped on about twenty western roads already, and strikes are threatened on all roads which use Pullman cars. On the whole, other changes during the week have been for the better. Many manufacturing establishments which were stopped for want of fuel have resumed; the depletion of the treasury reserve has been checked by the voluntary deposits of gold by New York banks; exports of gold have almost ceased, congress has made much progress toward final disposition of the tariff question and crop prospects grow better as the harvest draws nearer.

The resumption of work in mines and mills has made good progress, but the demand for products is as yet smaller and less urgent than was expected. Buyers apparently wait for lower prices of iron and steel products, which manufacturers are slow to give in view of the increased cost of materials and production. After a suspension of half the working force for more than a month it was expected that orders for products would be very large, but instead there is general complaint of dullness and narrow demand. Although the working force has evidently increased, several establishments have stopped for want of orders or because no settlement regarding wages for the coming year has yet been reached.

Textile manufacturers are much embarrassed by the near approach of the probable change in the tariff, the effect of which cannot yet be calculated. In spite of this reason for deferring orders and purchases the number of mills quitting work is not yet as large as was expected, for there appears a little more demand from clothiers and jobbers.

This week the failures have been 214 in the United States against 327 for the same week last year, and 25 in Canada against 21 last year. The number and importance of failures have increased a little, as is usual near the close of a half year.

Bradstreets review says: While there is no actual improvement in business throughout the country, there are more favorable prospects and better feeling among merchants, with an increased number of instances where trade has been stimulated. The ending of the great bituminous coal strike is promptly followed by a sympathetic strike of railway employes which threatens disastrous effect on business by reason of interference with distribution and travel. Losses on perishable freight in transit are already reported. Other unfavorable features include a conference of Rhode Island cotton mill owners as to the advisability of shutting down owing to accumulation of stock, heavy arrivals of wools at eastern markets, where stocks are already large, delay in settling the coke strike, which prevents many industrial establishments from starting up, an extremely restricted volume of business among wholesale dealers in clothing at Baltimore, 41 per cent of what it was in the first half of last year, delayed orders from country merchants in Georgia and South Carolina, where crop damage has been threatened, and a sharp restriction in the volume of general trade at Chicago, where the railway strike centers.

THE LONG DEBATE ENDED

The Amended Tariff Bill Reported to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The consideration of the tariff bill, which was begun by the senate in committee of the whole on April 2, was at last completed yesterday, and at 5:45 p. m. the bill was favorably reported to the senate as amended. In view of the fact that senators asked some little time to examine the bill as amended, and on account of the general desire for a short respite from the long siege to which they have been subjected, the senate then adjourned over until Monday, when the final struggle over the bill will occur in the senate. No unusual incident marked the close of the consideration of the bill in committee. The main feature of the day was the debate on the section providing for the repeal of the reciprocity provision of the McKinley law. This section was amended so as to provide for the continuance of the existing reciprocity arrangements, except where inconsistent with other provisions of the bill. An attempt was made by Mr Peffer to have a new section added imposing a tax of $50 on all immigrants coming to the United States, but it was voted down, as was an amendment of Mr Gallinger looking to compelling trade concessions from Canada.

With the exception of a short time the day in the house was consumed by a filibuster over the contested election case of Watson against Black of the Tenth Georgia district. The tangle was finally straightened out and the resolution of the committee on elections declaring Mr Black elected was agreed to only the Populists dissenting.

New York Will Honor Carnot

NEW YORK, June 30.—M. Thiebaut, French consul in this city, has been instructed by his government to organize a memorial service in honor of the late president of the French republic, and has accordingly issued to the federal, state and city authorities, the consular body and the members of the French colony an invitation to be present. The national funeral of President Carnot being celebrated in Paris at the Cathedral of the Notre Dame tomorrow it is the wish of the government to have all similar ceremonies celebrated in foreign countries on the same day. The archbishop of New York has placed the cathedral at the disposition of the consul.

Another Convention of Miners

PHILIPSBURG, Pa., June 30.—At a meeting of the representatives of the miners of this district, held here yesterday afternoon, it was decided to issue a call for a general convention of the miners of central Pennsylvania, Virginia and Maryland. The call for the convention fixes the basis of representation at one delegate to every 100 miners. Work is being resumed in the Clearfield district at all the mines in which the compromise rate of forty-five cents a ton is being paid, and seven mines are in operation at present. In the Beech Creek region the men refuse to return to work until a majority of the operators consent to pay the same scale.

Reunion of Homestead Correspondents

PITTSBURG, June 30.—Arrangements are being made for a reunion of correspondents who were at Homestead during the famous siege of "Fort Frick" two years ago. The event is to take place in this city on July 6, the second anniversary of the riot, and is to be attended by newspaper men from this city, New York, Pittsburg, Scranton, Baltimore, Washington and other cities. The principal guest of the occasion will be Major General George R. Snowden, who was in command of the troops at Homestead.

Importing Virginia Negroes.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., June 30.—The operators seem determined to force the coke strike to an early close. Five car loads of negroes were shipped into the region yesterday and increased runs are reported at the plants not running full. The negroes were shipped here direct from Virginia, and a number of the men brought their families with them. The outlook for the strikers is daily proving more discouraging.

A Vile Anarchist Threat.

PARIS, June 30.—The anarchists, representing themselves to be journalists, visited the man at Lyons who arrested Santo when he was trying to escape after stabbing President Carnot. After offering him flattering congratulations they induced him to give them his photograph. They then abandoned their disguise and told him that his fate was sealed.

An Alleged Absconding Forger.

RUSSELLVILLE, Ky., June 30.—The Logan County Deposit and Russellville banks, of this city, G. W. Davidson, banker of Auburn, and many farmers are mourning the sudden departure of the H. F. Lagler from McLeod. It is reported that he has forged $3,000 of their checks. He is the son of a minister. He left a wife and child.

Unionists Discharged

READING, Pa., June 30.—The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company yesterday afternoon discharged four men who are members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and this has led to the belief, founded upon good information, that the rule regarding the non-employment of union men is about to be strictly enforced.

THE BATTLE A DRAW.

Dixon Unable to Down Young Griffo in Twenty Rounds.

BUT HE SHOWS HIS SUPERIORITY.

Griffo, Though a Dozen Pounds Heavier Than the Colored Featherweight, Would Have Been Defeated Had It Been a Finish Fight.

BOSTON, June 30.—Five thousand spectators witnessed one of the prettiest fights ever held in this city at the Casino last night. John L. Sullivan and Paddy Ryan were very conspicuous in the front rows, and Sullivan was continually running to Griffo's corner with tips and suggestions for the Australian. Dixon was in grand shape and presented a strange contrast to the burly Griffo. The latter seemed careless, and his heavy form created the impression that Dixon would have a hard tussle to win, but here was where the colored lad proved his gameness and adroit ring tactics. He was cuffed and slapped and cut about the face by his heavier opponent, but on more than one occasion during the twenty rounds it looked as though his left hand would smash the Australian.

Griffo is a great fighter and no mistake, but the impression gained from the battle of last night is that if an even weight the colored boy would win. Griffo tipped the beam at 1?? pounds, while Tom O'Rourke told the newspaper men present that Dixon weighed 121 pounds. Referee Johnny Eckhardt's decision of a draw was the only decision that could be rendered, but the real honors are Dixon's.

Both men started in with an evident determination to make quick work of his adversary, punching beginning in the first round. In the second round Griffo received warning from Mr Eckhardt that he must refrain from cuffing with his elbow on the negro's chin. He did as requested, and needed no further instructions.

From the third to the eighth round there was terrific fighting on both sides. At the end of the seventh round both were fagged out, and Dixon's nose was bleeding.

When the men were called for the ninth round Dixon's smile had returned, and as he rushed Griffo to his corner he laughed aloud at some warning given to the Australian by one of his handlers. Many blows were struck on each side, though but little damage resulted. Both were fighting hard at the sound of the gong.

In the tenth round the spectators were treated to a minute's clinching match, and before one could hardly disentangle the blows that had landed the men had broken away and were in the center.

Rounds 11, 12 and 13 were very even, but a repetition of their predecessors. Dixon would lead, Griffo would duck, or if not would meet his opponent with a punch on the eye or nose. Dixon would back away and repeat the performance, sometimes landing on Griffo's body, which was an ugly red in patches. Thus the battle continued until the last round.

In round 20 and last there was a furious two minute exchange of blows, in which the honors were divided, and then a walk around the ring. The pair had fought their fight of fights, and at the finish they shook hands and laughed good naturedly at one another. The referee declared the affair drawn.

Fatal Fire in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, June 30.—Fire last evening destroyed the Woodruff stores, a five story brick structure on Furman street, causing $1,000,000 loss. During the progress of the fire the south wall of a warehouse fell with a terrific crash. Four employes of the Ferry company were on a trestle work which runs through the yard. They were playing a hose on the company's property when the wall fell. Three of them were caught beneath the falling wall, while the fourth jumped and escaped. A rescuing party was formed, which in a short time succeeded in bringing their limp bodies out of the debris. Two of them had been killed outright, while the third man received injuries which will probably result in his death. The dead are John C. Darrow, aged 35, and James Prentice, aged 28. Samuel Nolan, who had his right leg cut off, will die.

New York's Corrupt Police Officials

NEW YORK, June 30.—The police commissioners at their meeting yesterday decided to follow out the terms of the resolution adopted by the board on the 5th inst. That resolution empowered Superintendent Byrnes to investigate and prefer charges against whom charges have been made before the Lexow committee. Commissioner Murray violently opposed this resolution and moved as an amendment the superintendent confer with Commissioner Kerwin before taking any steps in the matter. The amendment was lost, Commissioners Martin and Sheehan voting against it.

Deserting the Cruiser New York.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Today's Press says: The cruiser New York, which is lying at anchor off Stapleton, L. I., is said to have lost sixty of her crew by desertion since her arrival. The trouble is said to have been caused by a too strict executive officer, who instead of applying a mild punishment for mild breaches of discipline court martialed the offenders. AN AUCTION SALE.

There were stirring [illegible] in the village of Two Hills. Granny Lemon's mite of possessions was to be put up at auction.

Granny Lemon's daughter had died owing money and owing for furniture. It was only right to the old woman that the slur of debt should be removed from her name.

Justice was bound to be hard on Granny and the baby. There was not a doubt in the mind of the villagers that Granny and the baby would have to be dispatched to the county poorhouse.

One by one the effects of the late Mary Ann were knocked down to the neighbors. The last article sold was a broom which was nearly all handle. It was knocked down to a broad shouldered man, who had put upon it the tremendous bid of 20 cents.

"Mary Ann Lemon was his gal once," said an old inhabitant of Two Hills.

"She'd best keep 'a' took him," said some one else. "He'd 'a' kept her comfortable behind the blacksmith shop."

The auctioneer had entered the cottage to make sure that all the furniture had been put upon the sale. Everything was gone. Only for granny and the baby the little room was empty.

The old woman sat upon the steps leading to the door above. She was holding the baby in her arms.

The auctioneer was not considered an odd man, but he was a man of impulse, big and bold when the impulse took hold of him. He hesitated a moment, looking at the old woman and the baby. Then he went forward suddenly and picked the baby out of the old woman's arms.

"I've got an idea, granny." The auctioneer stepped [illegible] the door after uttering these [illegible] words and [illegible] the [illegible] which had already been sold, with the baby clinging fast to his [illegible].

"Now here's a fine piece o' ware," he called out [illegible]. "This baby's a-goin to save its old granny from the poor's house; that's what it's a-gunna do. Who'll put a big bid on a rosy cheeked, hearty baby? [illegible] what'll you bid?" The people did not comprehend. [illegible]

"[illegible] a little bid," [illegible] "I don't [illegible]. I [illegible] some people would [illegible] for a baby [illegible] in Two Hills [illegible] for a baby."

"[illegible] hundred dollars!" called a voice in the crowd.

The villagers turned with one accord and stared at the blacksmith. What did Sam Winters want with a baby? He hadn't any [illegible].

The [illegible] pulled her husband by the [illegible] and whispered, "What'd we give for a baby like that, John?"

"[illegible]" said the other.

"Six hundred dollars!" shouted the auctioneer. "[illegible] a hundred dollars for to provide for old granny all her life. No wonder she's a-laughin at you. The Lemons, as a rule, is long lived. Make it a thousand. Come, who'll make it a thousand?"

"One thousand dollars!" said the blacksmith.

"One thousand dollars! Goin, goin, goin for $1,000. She's worth more'n $1,000. She'll give a body more'n $1,000 wuth of satisfaction. Look at her now. You've skeered her. She's as purty when she cries as when she laughs."

The little maid was puckering up her face; the tears were filling her great dark eyes. She put up her little fat fists and hid her eyes as the auctioneer again turned her to the crowd.

At this moment a carriage that was about to pass came to a standstill, a liveried footman sprang to the door, and the great people of Two Hills came piling out.

"Yes, it is true," cried the young lady, with a pretty, excited face. "They are actually selling a baby! Tom, look at the baby."

"Goin, goin, goin, for $1,000, the prettiest baby in Two Hills, the money to keep its old grandmother from the poorhouse!"

"Eleven hundred," cried the young lady, waving her black gloved hand frantically.

The blacksmith bid as high as $1,500, the rich lady made it $1,600, and the man turned and walked away.

"Gone to Mrs. Eustice at $1,600," said the auctioneer, making a fine bow, but looking as if he didn't know what to do with the baby.

But the great lady ran up to the auctioneer and received her property in her arms.

Granny's baby went through a wonderful transformation during the following week, and the people in Two Hills talked about the "luck" that had befallen both Mary Ann's offspring and Granny Lemon.

But Granny Lemon's spirits had not risen with the knowledge that she was not to go to the poorhouse. Indeed it was suspected that Granny Lemon hardly realized the blessing that had befallen her. Since the day of the sale she had been growing apathetic and feeble.

One day when granny's baby pointed at him from the carriage window the blacksmith left his job of shoeing and retired to the interior of the shop.

"You couldn't 'a' done fer her as she'll be done for, Sam," said the old man whose horse he had left half shod. "You couldn't 'a' made a fine lady out o' her."

"No, I couldn't 'a' done that," said Sam.

During the summer the news spread through the village that g'anny's baby was getting kind of cross and peevish, and that the great lady had said to the nurse that it was a mistake for a person to adopt a child.

Two months later it was declared positively that Mrs. Eustice was going to Europe with her husband and her great aunt; that g'anny's baby lay ill in the big house; that Mrs. Eustice had told the doctor she never could forgive herself [illegible] adopting the child.

The sun was about three feet from the top of the second hill when the bit of flying gossip reached the blacksmith's shop and was just sinking behind the hill when a broad shouldered man walked hastily across the grounds and entered the big house by the front way.

While the man sat waiting in the library he took from his pocket a greasy pocketbook, and opening it laid the contents on his knee. His hand trembled as he counted the notes over to make sure they were all right—$1,600.

There was a sweep of dainty garments along the hall, and Mrs. Eustice came into the library. She gave a slight start upon recognizing her visitor, regarding him not so much as the blacksmith, whom she knew by sight at the shop, but as the man who had bid against her for g'anny's baby.

"I heard," said the man slowly, "that you're goin off to Europe."

"Yes," said the lady.

"And they say that the baby ain't so well."

"Yes, that's true too. It's been ailing all summer. What did you wish?"

"I was thinkin," he said, "that as the whole transaction was a business one—that, now being as you're goin away, and the baby's sick, maybe you might be willin to sell. I'm ready to give you yer price."

Mrs. Eustice was startled. She had laughed at the [illegible] squandering of her money at the village [illegible] more than once; but, according to herself, she was honest.

"You ought to see the poor little thing," she said. "Come, I'll show her to you."

Silently Sam Winters followed the great lady to the nursery [illegible] the baby [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
what's the matter with [illegible]

"I'll give you $1,6[illegible]" said the [illegible] huskily.

"[illegible] wouldn't [illegible]. Well, I don't [illegible] lives till [illegible] them. I tell you what. I'll [illegible] the [illegible] baby [illegible] I [illegible] it [illegible]"

[illegible]

It was the [illegible] through the [illegible] of [illegible] with [illegible]

He [illegible] he went into the house and laid the baby on the [illegible].

"Granny," he called [illegible] "Granny!"

She came in slowly from the kitchen, shading her old eyes.

"Don't you think you kin nurse a l'l the baby till she's well?"

The old woman fell on her knees beside the bed, she gathered the baby close in her arms, she swayed to and fro as if she were rocking it. The apathy had vanished from her face; it was as glad as sunshine.

"I'll nuss her till she gits well," she sobbed, "or we'll die together."

Six months had passed away. It was on a beautiful afternoon in the springtime. All the roses in Two Hills were abloom. A carriage drawn by two splendid bays came clattering up the village street. The great people had returned.

Sitting in the doorstep of a little whitewashed cottage was a small yellow haired girl. She was swinging her feet and singing at the top of her voice. Above her the red roses trailed themselves luxuriously.

The lady looked out and waved her hand and smiled. The child stopped singing and stared.

"She doesn't know me," said the great lady, with a half sigh and a laugh.

But the yellow haired girl rose from the doorstep with alacrity, ran into the cottage and laid her head in the old grandmother's lap, hiding her face. "I'm g'anny's baby," she sobbed.

The old woman heard the carriage wheels and the clattering horses. She passed her hand tenderly over the ruffled yellow head.

"Yes, deary," she said fondly, "and her ain't never goin to be sol' no more."

Extortion.

"Do you mean to say," said the sharp nosed woman, "that you charge as much for a five word message as you do for one containing 10 words?"

"That is the rule," replied the operator.

"It's just horrid, that's what it is. I can't think of another five words to put in that message to save my life."—Indianapolis Journal.

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson; I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to-day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess.

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this line of information, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a work giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. This work, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of today, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy and secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page and beneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history. The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

Evidently Mistaken.

He was a polite appearing man, with a small leather case in his hand, and when he rang the bell the lady of the house, who was "reddin up" the parlor, did not fear to go to the door, rag around her head and all.

"I am selling a small article here," he began as soon as the period of usual salutation had passed.

"I guess not," she interrupted.

"I beg your pardon," he said in a cloud of courteous helplessness.

"I said I guessed not," she smiled.

"Guessed not what?"

"Guessed you were not selling a small article here."

"But I assure you, madam, I am, and I have been selling them all over town for a week past."

"I don't doubt that, but it isn't any sign you are selling one here, for you are not, nor will you. I don't know what it is, nor do I want to know, and I wouldn't want it if I did, so good morning," and she firmly, but gently closed the door in his face.

"Wonder if that is another one of them language sharps from Boston," he soliloquized as he went down the steps.

HOW THE BABIES THRIVE.

Twins Brought Up on Lactated Food, Which Has Saved the Lives of Thousands of Infants Throughout the Country.

Sad-eyed mothers with frail, sickly babies that seem made for any world but this hard one, should cheer up.

There is a way of making puny little ones thrive and grow fat and strong and happy.

Lactated food is praised by thousands of mothers of robust children that were once weak and feeble, and even despaired of. Lactated food makes weaning an easy task.

The twin babies of Mrs. T. H. Hickens, of Atlantic Highlands, N. J., whose pictures are given above, were brought up entirely on lactated food, which has saved the lives of thousands of little ones whose mothers have been unable to nurse them at the breast.

The great dispensaries, nurseries, and homes for children use lactated food. It saves babies' lives. Can be had at any druggist's. It is always pure, keeps perfectly, and is not affected by age or temperature.

Sugar of milk is the basis of mother's milk, and it is the basis of lactated food. With it is combined pure barley malt, the finest wheat gluten, and the nutritious elements of the oat. It is thoroughly cooked by high steam heat, and a pre-digested, nutritious food that fulfills every requirement of the growing child is the result. There is no secret about it. It is simply a food.

Thousands of happy infants have been brought up on it.

Haying Commenced—Ran Away With a Plow—The Fourth—Took Unto Himself a Bride—Injured in a Runaway. A New Post Office—Drowned in Clinton Reservoir.

Correspondence ARGUS and MERCURY.

—Some of our farmers have commenced haying.

—While plowing corn, one day last week, Mr. Silas Storms' horse ran away. He had left the horse at the upper end of a side hill field and had gone after a drink, when the horse started down the field. When it reached the rail fence it jumped over, demolishing the plow. It was caught after a long chase in S. H. Wood's wood lot.

—The Fourth will be observed in several places in this vicinity. Franklin will have a dance, Hamburg will have ball games and a festival, Stockholm will have a dance and picnic. You pay your money and take your choice.

—Ira VanOrden, formerly of Stockholm, and Miss Edith Raynor, of Luzerne, Pa., were married at that place, Wednesday, June 27. They came to Stockholm in the evening where Mr. VanOrden is visiting his parents with his bride. We extend hearty congratulations.

—Committeeman Benjamin Snyder was quite severely cut and bruised about the head and face in a runaway, last Friday. He had just purchased a new crriage which was badly demolished.

—The people of Canisteer have succeeded in having a post office established at that place, and Benjamin Snyder has been appointed postmaster. This will be a great convenience to the people living in that vicinity as heretofore the nearest post office was at Vernon or Stockholm.

—A young man named John Seaball, of New Foundland, was drowned in the Clinton reservoir, one of the lakes from which the city of Newark draws her water supply, early Sunday morning. He with several other fellows had two or three boxes of beer at the pond, and Seaball had been drinking heavily, and though he could swim across the pond he had gone about half way when he sank to the bottom. The body was recovered Thursday.

CIRCLEVILLE.

A Very Lively Runaway.

Correspondence ARGUS AND MERCURY.

—Wednesday afternoon, a team standing at the depot took fright at the Crawford train and ran away. In attempting to turn the first corner the team ran into the iron fence in front of Harrison Bull's house with such force, that six wire posts were broken off and the fence laid flat. The wagon turned over twice and the horses broke loose and ran some distance, but strange as it may seem they were not hurt, nor was the wagon damaged.

For Over Three Months

my son suffered night and day with rheumatism; so much so that he was unable to feed himself. Your Sulphur Bitters cured him, and I am truly thankful to say they are an honest medicine.—MRS. W. H. CARLETON, wife of Deacon Carleton, First Baptist Church, Winchester, Mass.

OVER THE SHAWANGUNKS.

WHAT OUR NEIGHBORS IN SULLIVAN COUNTY ARE DOING.

All the News from All Parts of the County—Many Matters of Interest Condensed from Our Sullivan Exchanges and Contributed by Wide-Awake Correspondents.

—The residence of the late Silas Foster, on Division street, Monticello, was sold at mortgage foreclosure, Saturday, to Stephen Cross for $765.

—George W. Rockwell, lessee of the Sullivan county club house at Masten Lake, has arranged with Howard Tillotson to run a livery stable in connection with the club house.

—Only one civil case was tried at this week's County Court, that of Caroline Labarr against George W. Maney, to recover damages for alleged slander. The jury failed to agree.

—Miss Lila Stewart, of Kingston, will be in Monticello, next week, to arrange for the carnival to be given there this summer.

—William Bartholomew has purchased the carding mill of William Pierpont, situated about a mile south of Liberty.

—Geo. H. Carpenter, Esq., of Liberty, who defended Mrs. Halliday, has been allowed $300 by Judge Edwards, for his services in the case.

—City boarders in considerable numbers have already arrived in Liberty, and the many engagements of rooms lead hotel and boarding house keepers to expect a successful season.

—The Monticello Republican says that the three-year-old boy left at the house of E. B. Lindsley, near Hurleyville, on the night of June 16th, has been ascertained to be named Odell. It has also been learned that he is in some way related to the Odell under indictment for a part in the Bushville murder. The theory that the child came from Middletown is, the Republican says, mere conjecture, but there are many who think that the child may have known something in relation to the Bushville murder which made it seem desirable that he should be put out of the way.

FISHERMEN'S QUEER CATCHES.

—Judge Fitch, of Greene county, caught a squirrel on a fly while trouting up the Neversink, a few days since. The little animal was taking a morning bath, and a fly was cast toward it with such admirable precision that the hook caught in its foot. It was found necessary to drown the queer catch, as it refused to be reeled in. We learn that including this, the fiftieth consecutive year, Judge Fitch has "churned" trout streams, he has taken no less than 26 476 trout, not counting the squirrel. Hooking the latter reminds the Republican of a somewhat similar catch made by the late Rod. Voorhee, one night several years ago, a short distance below the old Babcock tannery in the town of Rockland. It was getting dark, and Rod. was getting in some nice work, when all at once there was a queer outcry overhead, and just then a vigorous tug on his line admonished him that he had made a catch. "That's a queer direction to look for a rise," he exclaimed. It proved to be a large-sized bat, which had been hooked as the fly whizzed through the air. The queer fish showed a good many vicious teeth to the square inch, and Rod. was obliged to resort to heroic treatment before the pesky thing could be detached.—Monticello Republican.

Behring Sea Regulations.

LONDON, June 30.—An order in council was published by The Official Gazette last night which gives effect to the arrangements made to enforce Articles 4 and 7 of the scheduled provisions of the Behring sea act for a year. These arrangements provide that British sealers before sailing must obtain a special license which must always be carried. Every such vessel must carry a black and yellow flag beneath the national colors. The license may be revoked if the regulations are violated.

Threatening Premier Crispi.

ROME, June 30.—A man in the garb of a workingman was observed shadowing Premier Crispi, and afterward he was found loitering outside of Signor Crispi's residence. When questioned as to his motive for following the premier and lingering in the vicinity of his house, he declared it was his purpose to "square accounts with him." The man was searched at the police station and a large knife was found upon him.

Chairman Wilson Again at Work.

OBITUARY.

George H. Lowe.

Mr. George H. Lowe, proprietor of the Standard Hotel, near the Wickham avenue depot, died at 10:35 o'clock, this morning, of liver and stomach troubles, after a short illness, aged thirty-two years.

He was a son of Frederick W. Lowe, the file manufacturer, and was born in Connecticut but has resided in this city most of his life.

He was married about eleven years ago to a daughter of Mr. Christian Walters, who, with his father, mother and two brothers, survives him.

The funeral will take place on Monday, at 2 p. m., at his late residence. The interment will be in Hillside Cemetery.

BEFORE THE RECORDER.

To Answer to Two Charges—Assault and Burglary.

John Jordan was arrested, last night, on the charge of assault in the second degree.

The complainant was Dominico Futino, in behalf of his father, Rusairo Futino.

The latter keeps a little store on Cottage St. Jordan went in on June 11th and wanted bologna and other articles on "tick." The Italian knew his man and refused to trust him, whereupon Jordan picked up a brick and struck Futino on the head, knocking him insensible and cutting a gash in his head from which the blood flowed until the place resembled a slaughter house more than any thing else. A warrant was sworn out, but the man was not captured until last night, when he was found hiding in the garret.

Jordan was locked up and this morning when arraigned waived examination and gave bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance before the grand jury.

Jordan's mother and sister were in the court room when he was brought in and the latter wept bitterly.

This is not Jordan's only offense, for, on March 22d, 1892, a warrant was issued for his arrest on the charge of burglary, he having, it is alleged, entered the store of George Perrine and stolen several small articles.

The complainant in the latter case is out of town.

EAGLES' PATROL WAGON.

An Impracticable Scheme for the Reduction of its Weight.

The proposition of Eagle Hose Co., to remove the side seats and the hose boxes from the patrol wagon to reduce the weight is an impracticable one, and should not be considered by the Fire Committee for a moment. The reduction of weight would be insignificant as the weight is mostly in the running gear.

The wagon should never have been received in the first place as its weight is 1,000 pounds more than the specifications called for.

Undoubtedly the best way out of the predicament is to trade the Eagles' "supply" wagon for a patrol wagon, while it is new and of some value.

With the seats and hose boxes removed this would be no better for service than any other heavy express wagon.

Mrs. Halliday in Dannemora Prison.

On her way to Clinton prison Mrs. Halliday spent one night in the Plattsburg jail, sleeping soundly.

In the prison she was placed in a cell made of iron bars in the middle of the death house. She will be watched day and night by the matron and female attendants from the Ogdenburgh and Matteawan asylums. A prison guard will always be within call.

All at the prison who have seen the woman think she is insane.

FOR EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

The Meeting at the Assembly Rooms, Last Night.

The meeting at the Assembly Rooms, last evening, in the interest of the movement in behalf of equal suffrage was very well attended, for in spite of the intense heat over 200 persons were present. Men were in a very small minority, the women outnumbering them in the proportion of at least five to one.

Owing to some misunderstanding no piano had been provided and the audience therefore missed the pleasure of hearing the selections which Miss Steiner had been expected to play.

At 8:15 Doctor Pillsbury ascended the platform and after he had made a short address, introduced the speaker of the evening, Miss Katherine Stagg, of New York.

Miss Stagg, who is a comely young woman, looked cool and refreshing in a very fetching white costume, with a suggestion of mannishness in its style. Her talk, for it was a talk rather than a set address, was bright and interesting but it may well be doubted if it made a single convict or strengthened one of the faithful in the faith. Some of her points were applauded but the evening was too hot for much exertion of that kind.

When Miss Stagg had finished, a collection was taken up to help defray the expenses of the meeting and a petition was circulated for signatures. Most of the women and a few of the men signed the petition, but most of the men having gone out before the hat was passed and very few of the women being sufficiently emancipated to have pockets, and being, therefore, in a condition of utter impecuniosity, the collection was hardly large enough to pay for the wear and tear on the hat.

No account of the meeting would be complete without mention of Dr. Pillsbury's yellow dog, which added interest if not dignity to the proceedings by eddying and circling about the Doctor's legs, while he was speaking, and by posing on the platform in hot weather attitudes during Miss Stagg's address.

A DWELLING HOUSE ON FIRE.

The Residence of John D. Mould, Near Montgomery, Saved by the Efforts of Neighbors.

From our Montgomery Correspondent

The home of Mr. John D. Mould, about two miles north of this village, on the State road, was found to be on fire at about 10 o'clock, Friday morning. The neighbors promptly responded and by hard work the handsome residence was saved.

The fire originated in an ash barrel in the cook house, filled with hot cinders. The kitchen was burned up entirely and one side of the house was badly scorched. Mr. and Mrs. Mould had gone to Goshen, but were called home by telephone. The loss was about $30, which was fully covered by insurance.

A Cloud Burst in Delaware County.

Two clouds came together, Sunday, over the town of Bovina, Delaware county, and the rain literally poured down. The Little Delaware raised fifteen feet above high water mark in less than an hour. Bridges were swept away, low lands flooded, sheep, hogs and cattle drowned, and great damage done to crops.

No Formal Appeal for Mrs. Halliday.

An Albany dispatch says that Pardon Clerk Joyce is authority for the statement that no definite appeal for the pardon or the commutation of sentence of Mrs. Halliday has been received, although a few informal appeals have been received from persons, who have no knowledge of the case.

New Rails for North Street.

New rails were distributed along North street, between Railroad and Wickham avenues, yesterday, and will be laid, to-night, after the cars stop running. A force of fifty or sixty men will be put on so as to complete the work before the time for the cars to start out in the morning.

Fell from a Load of Hay.

Yesterday afternoon, while William Maginnis, who resides near Mount Hope, was upon a load of hay at his barn, he was thrown off by the hay upon which he was standing being pulled from under his feet by the horse hay fork. In his fall he struck on his side upon some object and two of his ribs were broken.

Mistaken for Homer Sarvis.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

IN ANCIENT GOSHEN.

A Pleasant Musical Entertainment in Prospect for the Evening of July 3rd. Other Matters of Local Interest.

From a special correspondent.

—The music loving portion of our population have a treat in store for them for next Tuesday evening, when a musicale will be given at Music Hall under the auspices of the ladies of St. James's Guild. Among the artists who are to assist upon this occasion are Mr. Gaston Blory, the celebrated violinist; Mrs. Edward Earle and Miss May Bennett, soprani; Mr. Geo. A. Flemming, baritone, and Mr. Charles Demarest, tenor. After the close of the concert the floor will be cleared for dancing and ice cream and cake will be served. The price of admission will be fifty cents, no extra charge for reserved seats. The tickets are for sale at Power's drug store. To say that this concert is to be under the auspices of the ladies of the Guild is a recommendation in itself, as the entertainments given by them have never failed to prove highly satisfactory to the public. None of the artists, with the exception of Mr. Demarest, has been heard in our village before, but all are highly spoken of. Mr. Gaston Blory, the violinist, is said to be especially fine.

—The Misses Haight gave a pleasant party at their home on Main street, last evening. They were assisted in receiving their guests by Miss Laura Moses, of New York, Miss Mary Bacon, of Goshen, and Miss Maria Ireland, of Crystal Run.

—Mrs. Cowdruy, of Warwick, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. George Grier, at her home in this village.

—The much talked of seventeen year locusts made but a brief stay in our village. They did not blight the trees nor sting anyone to death. They only made mournful music for a few days, and then departed hence and were no more seen. G. E.

ANOTHER DEFEAT FOR THE ASYLUMS

The Walden Boys Have It All Their Own Way—The Score 12 to 1 In Favor of the Waldens.

The Asylum ball team does not seem to be "in it" at all this week. They were defeated on their own grounds, on Thursday, by the Flushings, and, yesterday, they went to Walden fully expecting to score a victory, but they came home with their feathers dragging in the mire, the Walden boys having made a score of twelve runs, and allowing the Asylums to barely escape a white washing by giving them a single run.

Cheseboro was in the pitcher's box until the sixth inning, and the Waldens made eleven runs off his delivery. He was then taken out and Tierney put in his place, and but one run was made after he entered the box.

The Asylums were not altogether satisfied with the decisions of the umpire, but this does not wholly account for their defeat. "Luck," they say, was against them all day.

The Walden boys entertained the Asylums royally after the game.

The following are the documents:

MADE THEM MARRY.

EMPEROR NAPOLEON WAS A MATRIMONIAL DESPOT.

He Compelled Woman to Marry to Suit His Interests or Whims—Some of the Disagreeable Alliances Brought About by This Tyrannical Matchmaker.

Among the numerous works to which the revival of the Napoleonic legend has given birth is one on "Napoleon and the Ladies." The [illegible] himself to the [illegible] [illegible] to manners, but without success. His relation with his two wives were not remarkable for either [illegible] of rather or delicacy, and he adopted a sort of pleasantry in his conversation with the ladies of his court which was not far removed from downright vulgarity.

But what tended to make the very name of Napoleon hateful to all young Frenchwomen was his famous conscription of girls, whom he married offhand to his generals without the slightest ceremony. The Marquise de Coigny, on her return to Paris, was ordered to marry her daughter to General Sebastiana. Both mother and daughter protested in vain. Three days after the order the marriage took place at the Tuileries, Napoleon himself giving away the bride. Mlle. Adele de la Le[illegible]erald was renowned throughout the whole department for her grace, beauty and expectations, when she was privately informed by the prefect that Napoleon had decided to marry her to Count Aldobrandini. The lady objected to the count for the best of feminine reasons—namely, that he was neither young nor handsome.

The count, however, was the brother of Prince Borghese, the husband of Pauline, the sister of Bonaparte, and the resistance of father and daughter was of no moment, and they were obliged to yield to the will of Napoleon. Count d'Arberg, the descendant of a sovereign family, prefect of the Bouches du Weser, and one of Napoleon's chamberlains, had two daughters of marriageable age. Napoleon ordered that one should marry General Klein, and the other General Mouton, count de Lobau. The mother of the two young ladies was Countess Stolberg, sister of Countess Albany, widow of the last of the Stuarts. Fanny Dillon, the daughter of Count Dillon, was ordered to marry General Bertrand. The young lady refused even to see the general, objecting that he was hideous, which unfortunately happened to be the truth. Napoleon was irritated at this conduct and ordered the young lady to be arrested and confined in prison until she consented to marry Bertrand, the monster, as she called him.

The Duc de Lauraguais, father of the Duc d'Arenberg, colonel of a regiment of cavalry and an unfortunate bachelor, was ordered by Napoleon, under penalty of dismissal from the army, to marry forthwith Mlle. Stephanie Tascher de la Pagerie, cousin germain of the Empress Josephine. The young lady as well as the duke objected to the marriage, and the former had the audacity to declare that she not only hated the duke, but was over head and ears in love with a certain M. de Gentry. The marriage between the cousin of Josephine and the duke nevertheless took place, and at the marriage ceremony, when the young lady, in reply to the priest's question, refused to say yes Napoleon himself deigned to push her head downward in token of assent. After the marriage ceremony this strangely married couple went to reside at the Hotel de Chimay. But the duchess refused to receive her husband, who, like a reasonable being, posted after his regiment, then serving in Spain. In 1811 he was made prisoner and sent to England, where he remained until the fall of Napoleon in 1814. On his return to Paris the duchess obtained a dissolution of the marriage on the ground of restraint, and she finished by marrying the happy M. de Gentry.

The Prince of Hohenzollern, cousin of the king of Prussia, was ordered to marry Antoinette Murat, a cousin of the "Beau Sabreur" and king of Naples, and although both the prince and Antoinette declared that they mutually hated one another the marriage nevertheless took place, Napoleon being of the opinion, like Mrs. Malaprop, that marriage [illegible] had better commence with a little hatred. One morning the Duc de Croy was informed by his friend, the prefect of Mans, that Napoleon had resolved that his daughter should be married at once to a general, and that an order to that effect would be delivered to the Duc de Croy on the following day. But the duke was a man of resource, and there being in the house an amiable cousin, one Fernand de Croy, a marriage between the two cousins was celebrated at midnight by the parish priest. When the formal order of Napoleon arrived the next morning, the duke replied that he was "desolated," but that his daughter had already married her cousin Fernand. But it was not safe to try to outwit the powerful emperor, and a few days afterward Cousin Fernand, the married man, was drafted into a regiment of cavalry and sent to Russia, in which country he eventually [illegible] an arm.

As late as 1812 the Minister of Police [illegible] issued a circular to all the prefects of departments ordering them to send to Paris a list of all the heiresses in their respective departments, with full particulars as to age, personal charms and amount of property, either in possession or in expectation. These lists were sent to the emperor, who divided his time impartially between their perusal and the monthly returns of the positions of his regiments and their presumed equipment. In fact, the emperor, whether from policy or freak, or from both, was an inveterate matchmaker and never troubled himself about the "conscientious scruples" of either the ladies or gentlemen concerned.—American Register.

"ADAMANT" WALL PLASTER!

The New, Cheap Substitute for Common Plaster.

It is very hard and very adhesive; it does away with the warping and shrinkage of doors and casings, and the building is not saturated with water, as it necessarily must be when common plaster is used; it costs originally but little more than lime plaster, and in the end its superior qualities make it immeasurably cheaper; it saves waiting several weeks or months for the building to dry out; it does not crack or fall off, even in the case of leakage; it is applied easily by any good plasterer; it is the only material with which repairing can be done neatly and "to stay."

How Bridget Prepared Crabs.

Bridget, her Harlem mistress always said, was "willing," but she did not understand American cookery.

Her mistress sent home a half dozen live hard shell crabs one day and had left word that they were to be prepared for dinner. When the lady entered the kitchen on her return home, she found Bridget in tears and with her hands and arms tied up. Two empty green crab shells were on the table, three of the crabs were mutilated and dead, and the last one Bridget was preparing to attack.

"I've dressed them all," exclaimed Bridget, "but that last devil in the corner, and he's a fighter."

"What are you doing to them?" gasped the mistress.

DON'T RUN THE OLD MAN IN DEBT.

A woman's heart is set on a beautiful dress,
All right minded men admit that.
And her charms are enhanced, even cynics confess,
By the aid of a bonnet or hat.
But, wife, please remember, when sighing for [illegible]
And longing to shine in your set,
That [illegible] also,
And don't run the old man in debt.
Don't run the old man in debt,
Don't [illegible] fret.
Have clothes that's nice, but look out for the price,
And don't run the old man in debt.

[illegible] to be thought
[illegible]
But [illegible] bought
For cash do not get it on trust.
'Tis pleasant to be on the top of the heap,
[illegible]
So [illegible] the cost [illegible]
And don't run the old man in debt.
Don't run the old man in debt,
Don't make for him worry and fret.
Your kite you may fly till it touches the sky,
But don't run the old man in debt.

It's quite a delight to go shopping, no doubt,
The hobby of matron and maid,
For women take pleasure in looking about
When beautiful goods are displayed,
But while you see bargains that you might desire,
Their purchase might cause you regret.
Don't buy any goods that you do not require
And don't run the old man in debt.
Don't run the old man in debt,
Don't make for him worry and fret.
Buy the things that you need, but always take heed
And don't run the old man in debt.

Though one may the love of nice things understand
And underwear dainty and light,
What's the use of a diamond clasp on a band
That always is hidden from sight?
On ornaments that are concealed from the view
Don't let your affections be set,
Buy only the things that are useful to you,
And don't run the old man in debt.
Don't run the old man in debt,
Don't make for him worry and fret.
Pray look out when you buy pretty things that come high
And don't run the old man in debt.

Your neighbors, of course, you may try to outshine—
'Tis a failing that's common to all.
Perhaps from the first that was nature's design,
Or maybe it came with the fall.
But don't be by promptings of vanity led,
However your wishes may set.
If Eve had her failings, it cannot be said
That she ever ran Adam in debt.
Don't run the old man in debt,
Don't make for him worry and fret.
Be stylish and gay if you're built in that way,
But don't run the old man in debt.

—Boston Courier.

Getting at the Facts.

Attorney—You are the president of the Dazzle[illegible] Gas company, are you not?

Witness—I am.

"Now, sir, for the purpose of getting at [illegible] facts in this case I am compelled [illegible]"

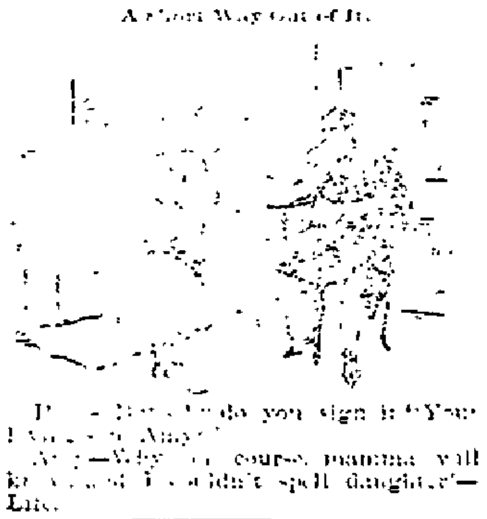
[illegible] this case?"

[illegible]

[illegible] —The Witness [illegible]

[illegible] sir, [illegible] —Chicago [illegible]

A Short Way Out of It.



[illegible] do you sign it "Your [illegible] Amy"?

Amy—Why, of course, mamma will know that I couldn't spell daughter.—Life.

Delicated.

She threw herself into a chair and wept miserably.

"I don't know"——

She wrung her hands in desperation.

——"whether to go back to mamma or k-k-kill myself."

The man with the large neck put his feet on the table and smiled.

"My dear," he observed, "I really would not like to advise you on so close a question of preference."

Saying which he fell to picking his teeth noisily.—Detroit Tribune.

Not Caught.

The blithe girl laughed.

"Yes," she prattled, "I met him on the street."

The languid being sighed.

"Did you catch his eye?" she asked.

"I"——

The laugh had died upon her lips.

——"see."

Hastening from the room, she closely examined the prongs of her parasol.—Truth.

A Bright Boy.

"Johnnie," said a teacher in one of the up town public schools, "have you seen the skeleton of the mammoth in the Museum of Natural History?"

"Yes, mum."

"To what kind of an animal does it belong?"

"A dead one."—Texas Siftings.

Reassuring.

Mrs. Joles—John, I am pained to learn from one of your instructors that while you were once well up in your studies at college you are falling away back.

John (reassuringly)—Mebbe I was back once, mother, but I'm improving. I'm half back now.—Chicago Record.

Not His Fault.

Mrs. Henpeck—On the 25th of next month we will celebrate our silver wedding. Don't you think we ought to kill the fatted calf and ask in the neighbors?

Mr. Henpeck—Kill the calf! I don't see how the unfortunate animal is to blame for what happened 25 years ago.—Tit-Bits.

In the Office Building of the Future.

Stranger (entering elevator)—Eighty-four, please.

Elevator Boy—Yes, sir. Floor or room?—Chicago Tribune.

Police Court Troubles of Middletown Italians—The Berry Season and What It Costs—Port Jervis Fishermen at Highland Lake.

Although Middletown's Italian population is numerically small the police records show that it furnishes a good deal of business for the Recorder's court. Members of the Italian colony, when they quarrel among themselves, have a way of rushing to the Recorder for warrants, but these cases are seldom pressed, for when the first anger is over the complaints are withdrawn When, however, an Italian comes to blows with any one not of his own race then there is business for the Recorder indeed and there is no letting up and the case is tried out to the end. There is a great deal of prejudice felt against the Italians by the people living in the vicinity of their colonies and truth compels the admission that this prejudice is due the fact that so many disputes occur between Italians and their neighbors, and these disputes, instead of being mere verbal wrangles, are almost always the ugliest kind of fights.

Have you any idea how much the people of this city spend for berries in the course of a year? I don't suppose there is any way in which the figures can be got at even approximately, but the total must amount to a very large sum. For two months or more we have been eating strawberries and for the next two months the markets will be supplied with red and black raspberries, currants, huckleberries and blackberries, and by the time the season is over Middletown will have made way with many thousand quarts of berries, at a cost of a good many thousand dollars. We sometimes think that prices for berries are pretty stiff and figure out that the grower who can bring a few crates to market every day for the season ought to be able to retire in a year or two, but I am told by a man who has raised berries for a number of years that the dealers take a good slice of the profits and as another grower said, "if any one thinks twelve cents a quart too much for strawberries let him or her go out in a berry patch and pick berries for a few hours these hot mornings and they'll very soon make up their minds that berries are worth all the farmers get for them."

It is currently reported about town that, last Saturday night, a party of Port Jervisites went to Highland Lake, put out set lines to which over [illegible] hooks were attached, and caught over a hundred pounds of catfish which they took back to Port Jervis with them Sunday morning. The story has put a number of Middletowners into a state of mind. It isn't that they wanted the catfish themselves, or really care how many are taken from the reservoir, but it galls them to think that Middletown should be raising catfish in one of its reservoirs with which to feed Port Jervisites.

NO TUBERCULOSIS.

Ira A. Smith's Cows All Right—An Expensive Blunder.

From the Independent Republican.

Chemist Beebe, of the New York Board of Health, inoculated several guinea pigs with milk from five cows belonging to Mr. Ira A. Smith, of this town, in whose herd tuberculosis was alleged to exist. On Tuesday, the animals were killed and the bodies examined and no trace whatever of the disease could be found. This establishes the fact that Mr. Smith's cows are healthy and the embargo, which has been placed upon his milk in consequence of the statements made by the Board of Health will be removed.

Mr. Smith has claimed from the beginning that tuberculosis did not exist in his herd, and that the cow whose carcass he sent to New York was sound and free from disease. It now looks as if Mr. Smith was the victim of blunder, or worse. The business has been a terribly expensive one for him, and the result is calculated to bring into disrepute the representative of the Board of Health, who examined Mr. Smith's cows and pronounced them diseased.

SMALL BULLET WOUNDS.

The Deadly Effects of Modern Projectiles Upon the Human Body.

The celebrated English surgeon, Professor Victor Horsley, read a very interesting paper before the Royal Institution on the effect of modern small projectiles. In the course of his remarks he said: "Some people seem to think that a small bullet at a very high speed will pierce the tissues of the body without doing much general damage. This, however is erroneous. The bullet impels forward with it particles of the substance through which it is passing, and thus practically becomes a larger projectile If a bullet be fired through a book, it carves out disks of increasing diameter as it traverses the pages. Hence, too, it is plain that the greater the sectional area the greater the damage. As to the heating of the bullet it has certainly been much exaggerated, and its effects, if indeed it has any, may be safely neglected.

"The physical construction of a body has a most important bearing upon the behavior of a bullet entering it. Why does a bullet of certain size and traveling at a certain rate simply perforate some substances, such as wood or iron, while in others, such as clay, brain, etc., it exercises a bursting and disruptive action? The answer is quite simple, the destructive effects vary directly as the viscosity of the body

"This is established by some remarkable researches on the effects of bullets on soft bodies made by Huguier after he had observed the nature of the wounds inflicted in the fighting in Paris in 1848. He suggested, from observations made on certain dead organs, such as lungs, that the reason of the great lateral disturbance was that the tissues contained water in large quantity, and that the energy of the moving projectile being imparted to the particles of water caused the dispersion of these in a hydro-dynamic fashion.

"This suggestion was shown to be correct by Kocher in 1874-5. If a shot be fired through two tin canisters of equal size, the one full of dry lint and the other of wet, it will simply perforate the former, but cause the latter to burst explosively. In the same way shots fired into dough have a more or less disruptive effect, according to the percentage of water in the dough, and in general the more fluid the substance the greater the destruction.

"Now, in life the brain is a more or less fluid body, though in a state of rigor mortis it is practically a solid, owing to coagulation of the blood and protoplasm. Hence a shot fired into the skull must have a disruptive effect and tend to burst it."

The Rough Bark of Trees.

The practical culturist understands that nature makes provision for getting rid of the bark of trees as the trunk increases in size. On the growth of the past season may be seen small olive spots. These are formations of cork. From year to year, in subsequent development, these cork patches spread, really eating their way through the bark This is the provision which nature makes for finally ridding the bark in each species of plant. These cork cells have their own special lines of development, and this is the reason why each kind of tree has its own particular bark. The characteristics are so prominent that clever observers can select different kinds of trees by their bark even at midnight. As it is the evident intention of nature to get rid of old bark, it is a great help to the tree to assist nature in this respect, and any washes or treatment which aids the plant in getting rid of it is a practical advantage. Soapy water washes or lye water is useful, and even scraping has been found of great advantage. In a rough sort of way, lime wash is frequently used, the only objection being the white and glaring color. It is, however, the cheapest and the best of all bark treatment.—Meehan's Monthly.
